Bob's easing up at 73

GOLD Coast mining industry veteran Bob McNeil has retired as non-executive director of Coppermoly – the company he helped float in 2008 after the demise of Macmin Silver.

Bob, 73, has decided to take it a bit easier doing some consulting work away from the hurly-burly of corporate life.

He's actually helping son Peter McNeil at Frontier Resources, the Perth explorer that once called the Gold Coast home.

This week Bob was at work in his home state of Tasmania where Frontier has some tin and gold prospects.
